Text 1

Cicero describes the fate of three powerful cities.

deleta Carthago est, quod cum hominum copiis, tum ipsa natura ac loco, succincta portibus, armata muris, excurrere ex Africa, imminere duabus fructuosissimis insulis populi Romani videbatur.

* Corinthi vestigium vix relictum est. erat enim posita in angustiis atque in faucibus Graeciae sic ut terra claustra locorum teneret et duo maria maxime navigationi diversa paene coniungeret, cum pertenui discrimine separentur. haec quae procul erant a conspectu imperi non solum adflixerunt sed etiam, ne quando recreata exsurgeret atque erigere se possent, funditus, ut dixi, sustulerunt. de Capua multum est et diu consultatum; *

exstant litterae, Quirites, publicae, sunt senatus consulta complura.

Cicero, De Lege Agraria Contra Rullum 2.87–88
Carthage was destroyed because, both with its ample supply of men and the very nature of its location, being surrounded with harbours and fortified with walls, it appeared to project out of Africa, and to threaten the two most productive islands of the Roman people.

Public documents are extant, O Romans; and there are many resolutions of the senate.

Encouraged by Apollo, Paris kills Achilles in battle.

adnuit atque animo pariter patruique suoque Delius indulgens nebula velatus in agmen pervenit Iliacum mediaque in caede virorum rara per ignotos spargentem cernit Achivos
tela Parim fassusque deum

* “quid spicula perdis
sanguine plebis?” ait. “siqua est tibi cura tuorum, vertere in Aeaciden¹ caesosque ulciscere fratres!”
dixit et ostendens stementem Troica ferro corpora Peliden², arcus obvertit in illum certaque letifera direxit spicula dextra.
quod Priamus gaudere senex post Hectora posset,
hoc fuit: ille igitur tantorum victor, Achille³,
victus es a timido Graiae raptore maritae!
at si femineo fuerat tibi Marte⁴ cadendum, Thermodontiacus⁵ malles cecidisse bipenni⁶! *

iam timor ille Phrygum, decus et tutela Pelasgi
nominis, Aeacides, caput insuperabile bello, arserat: armarat deus idem idemque cremabat.

Ovid, Metamorphoses 12.597–614

² Peliden (acc.): Pelides (the same Achilles, son of Peleus)
³ Achille (voc.): Achilles
⁴ Mars, Martis: Mars (the god of war; here in the sense of “battle”)
⁵ Thermodontiacus, a, um: of Thermodon (a reference to the Amazon Penthesilea, killed in battle by Achilles)
⁶ bipennis, is (abl. –i): double axe.
The Delian god assented and, indulging equally both his uncle’s desires and his own, veiled in a cloud, he arrived at the Trojan lines and, in the middle of the slaughter of men, saw Paris scattering arrows sparsely among unknown Achaeans, and, admitting he was a god,

Now, that terror of the Phrygians, the glory and protection of the Pelasgian name, Aeacides, the invincible leader in war, had burnt; the very god that had armed him was the very one that had cremated him.
